

The concentration of media ownership in a few hands is one of the most serious threats to American democracy. Current rules that limit conglomerates and guarantee at least some diversity of opinion should be maintained and rigidly enforced.